“ So shocked. I talked to Jeff almost every day while working for AVSX. He talked to me a lot when my daughter died. The first time I met him he came to the office and I had no idea who he was until he spoke. His voice was unique and our phone conversations gave away his identity. Rest in peace Jeff. I will keep his wife and son in my prayers. He loved them both so much.

“ I knew Jeff through the pinball and arcade community. He loved pinball and was an asset to our little community. He was always willing to give a helping hand. The Winston-Salem auctions won't be the same without him.

Jeff and I also shared a passion for the Premiere League, and I'll miss talking football with him. Being a Spurs fan, of course, he always gave me a hard time and I, likewise, for his Chelsea support, but always in good spirits. In fact, I was just about to message him about the derby this weekend when I got the news. I know he would have been thrilled with the result and up the Blues in Jeff's honor this weekend.

Will be keeping the family in my thoughts during this trying time.
