“ Paul, my older cousin by 5 years, was always up to something interesting. One day he appeared at his house with a huge snapping turtle in a wheel barrel...the size of garbage can cover. He retrieved a broom stick to help manage it, and the turtle bit cleanly through the handle with no effort. Another day Paul appeared with a 28 inch pickerel from a nearby stream and pond, largest ever caught in that area, and on still another day, he showed up with a 30 inch eel that had migrated up to our local fresh water stream from the Hudson River. And then there was the ever-present guitar and singing...Riders in the Sky was a favorite he played and sang for us; and then there was his always present good humor and smile. He particularly enjoyed teasing our grandfather Charlie, a.k.a Bub., when we fished together and just hung out.

Fond memories indeed.

RIP Paul.
