“ I miss you Waa. You are not forgotten. We talk about you and LAUGH and cry. You taught me that even in the face of what some would call defeat, that you relished in it. You were the best fisherman I know. You taught me how to ski without the gift of your vision. . . . You bought me sacks of candy so big, I'd get sick. I remember how you used to feel the edges of coins to see what they were. A quarter or nickle or dime or a penny. I would always mess with you when you'd ask, is this a hundred and I'd say no and youd tell me I was a story teller. Lol yeah. I miss you. . . . I hope you are somewhere pretty like Bucksport just a fishin.
