“ Uncle Anthony was one of my favorite people. He always had something smart to say, but boy would it make me laugh. I loved the smell of his cigars coming through the window in the spring. Now whenever I smell one I will forever think of you, although, I always have. I loved how big your heart was when it came to your family. You hardly ever verbalized it, but you always showed it with the little things you did for us. We spent a lot of time together these last couple of months, and I am truly forever grateful for it. I still can't get over or understand why we had to say goodbye so soon, but you will forever be in my heart. I love you Uncle Anthony, until we meet again. ❤️
