“ My dearest daughter, There is nothing more painful for a mother than the pain of her child, and there is nothing more painful for a wife than the loss of her husband and sole mate. Remember your vows, for richer or poorer, you and Arvin went through both, for better or worse, you and Arvin had both, in sickness and in health, you and Arvin went through this. You fulfilled your vows to each other, and you can keep him in your heart forever. This won't mean much now, but as you move forward in life, remember, you led him down the path to be saved and prepared him for his new birth to the lord, and save a place for you. You could not have given a more precious gift than that. Remember as time goes by to reflect on your love for each other and lean on those who love you and loved him. I loved Arvin and we had some good moments together, and I will miss him dearly, and we can share those moments together and he will live in our hearts forever. I love you.
