“ I don't know why my posting isn't on here anymore, but I check often to see what's going on. I knew Ben since forever and I still, a year and a half later, can't digest what happened. I loved him and his family so much, and I hope they all know that. Lynn, Michael, Billy, and Nicole, I love you all like you are my family, and I hope you haven't forgotten me because I'll NEVER forget any of you. I love you. “ Lynn, Micheal, Billy, Nicole, and everyone else. I know that nothing can compare to the loss of Ben. I loved him so much, there was a lot that he cared for especially his mother. We all know that he is better off where he is now, and all we can do now is live on in his memory. Knowing Ben personally is a gift I can never forget, to me he was truly the life of the party. Letting go will not be easy for anyone and it takes time to realize its ok to. I have had my fare share of the pain from loosing a loved one and I have realized life is way too short to regret anything. There aren't enough words I can say to send much closure, other than that Ben can see everything we do and hear everything we say, and honestly he would not want us to cry. He would like for us to Smile and Know He lived a great life. Love you all!###imported-begin##Jennifer Giancotti###imported-end##

“ Lynn & Mike, I was so saddened to hear about your son/brother. I cannot express how deep my sympathy is for the both of you. My brother passed away when he was 22 so I know how Michael feels. My mother, Catherine Dewan sends her condolences also. I will keep you both deep in my prayers. If you need anything please call 626-8877. We will see you at the visitation. May God grant you both the strength you need.##imported-begin##Deborah V. Bailey##imported-end##
