“ Dear Family I do not know you but the sadness I feel in my heart can only be felt by someone who has lost a child. I know how strong you are going to have to be, the loss you will feel as you watch your other children grow. The pain will always be there but in time to come it will not be as great and deep, because in the end you know they will be waiting and what a wonderful time that will be. Many will be praying for your family in the next few days and weeks for God to show your family special grace and love. You will find your own ways to heal and grow because everyone is different. Prayers and God bless you all.
