“ It was September 1990, a couple of weeks after my wife Sue had died. I saw Don on his first day back from summer vacation. As usual he had a joke to tell, and it was a belly buster! I laughed until I cried. A short while later the phone rang, it was Don. He was mortified that he had the nerve to tell me such a joke so soon after my wife had passed. I asked him if I laughed, he said yes. Then I said it was worth it. That’s the way Don was quick with a joke but aware of one’s feelings. Keep the Angels laughing. Cindy and I will miss you.

“ Uncle Don, you are so very missed already. I'll always treasure the memories of you telling me I got beat with the ugly stick & then telling you someone smacked you hard with the short stick & messing up your flowing white locks. I love you midget, always!
