“ Back in 1970, my dad, Marion Ford, bought a green Plymouth Duster with no air conditioner. He was an insurance agent so he was in his car most of the day. He got through one summer I believe, and the next year, I'm fairly certain he had Mr. Thomas install a floor unit mounted below the ash tray area. That thing was as big as a small window unit but it cooled better than one that would have been built in. I just remember he and my dad being friends way back then.
