“ I remember when I was younger and I would go to my nana and pop pops house every Friday before bed I would go in their bed and me and pop pop would play the bed time game it included many funny activities but the main one was I would lay under a pillow and he would put his head on it and say wow this is an amazing pillow and I would wiggle around and he would say what why is my pillow moving and tickle my stomach

“ One thing I can tell you for sure. If George couldn't fix it, it wasn't broken. George was a good man and he is going to be sorely missed.

“ There were many get together at their house. There were times when I went that George would say to me why are you here you were not invited . I would say that’s ok I will take my food and go home. He did not want that. He seem to like my food. He really liked my cheese ball as long as I left the onions out. So many memories and the biggest thing he will not be forgotten. ”

“ I got to know George when he came to work for us at Blacks Tire Service. One of the kindest men that I have ever met. We became friends very fast and spent some weekends together with his family watching NASCAR. He loved being a mechanic and was willing to help anyone with anything. My condolences to his family.
