I am so sorry to read of Jason's passing. I enjoyed teaching him during his high school years. He was the editor of the student newspaper at Carolina Forest High School. He led by example, was intelligent but never flaunted it. He was kind to all and will certainly be missed. My prayers for all of his family.

I also taught Jason at Carolina Forest High School. He was such a joy every day in our AP English Literature class, as he loved to read and discuss all the novels, plays, and poetry we studied. In fact, he was the first one of my students to read Mrs. Warren's Profession on his own as he jokingly said he needed to read the play that featured me as its title character. I had heard from him a couple of times since he moved to Columbia but not for several years. He made an impact on my life and I will never forget him. My prayers are with all his family, his co-workers, his former classmates, and his former teachers such as Martha who has written above. We all loved him as a part of our school family in those wonderful early years of creating Carolina Forest High School.
