“ My heart is in a million pieces. For those who loved Kyle, especially for his family, the Martins and the McDowells, Lindsay Martin McDowell, you are in my constant thoughts and prayers. Kyle was one of the most kind hearted people that I've ever known. One of my favorite memories of him was when I was in anesthesia school. I was in Charleston and I was studying for an exam. I had my head in my books and I needed a break. Kyle offered to drive all of the way there and get dinner. Even tho I lived there, i was and still am terrible with directions and with parking. Charleston was almost like a big city to me being raised in the country. I parked in a parking garage and didn't pay any attention to what floor I parked on. I dressed up as I always wore scrubs and I finally had a chance to wear heels. That was not a good idea! The cobblestone streets in Charleston were not my friend! After a good hike in them to the restaurant and back to the car, my feet were hurting so bad. Being the gentleman Kyle is, he took off his rainbows, handed them to me and said "here, put these on." I asked him what he was going to wear and he said, "since when does a country boy need shoes??" He would have done absolutely anything for his friends and for anyone he saw who needed it. But the funniest thing about that evening was we couldn't find my car! We forgot what floor it was on! Then we started questioning if we were in the correct parking garage! We were in the right one, but we almost had to go on every floor in order to find it! We laughed so hard because in Conway, there are no parking garages and thats how we like it! Oh, Kyle, I'll miss your sweet smile and your big heart. I don't know why these things happen. But i do know that your time here on this earth made this world a better place. Mrs. Debbie, Mr. Kevin, Lindsay, JD, I can't imagine how your world has been turned upside down. I pray that God will give you peace that passes all understanding. The peace that only He can give. I love you all and I certainly loved Kyle.

“ I will miss seeing his bike under the awning at the church on Monday and Saturday nights. We shared the same enthusiasm about riding our Harley's. “ To the family and friends of Jonathan,
On behalf of my family and I, please accept our condolences for I am truly sorry for the loss of your loved one. A time like this can bring about much pain and sadness. Still, there is one promise from God mentioned in the Bible that can bring great comfort. This promise can be found at Isaiah 25:8, where God says that He will swallow up all death and wipe away the tears from people's faces. Soon in the near future, death will be nonexistent, which is something we all want. If you are interested in knowing more about God's purposes for mankind, you can visit [www. JW. “ I had the pleasure of having Kyle as a roommate when we were in our 20's. Both of us were young and trying to find our way through life and I could always count on him to be a friend if I ever needed anything. He was a very special person that would always put other's needs in front of his own. We got to know each other very well through hunting trips, late night chats, and especially over a good card game. We had grown apart over the years, but would always pick up right where we had left off every time we saw each other.

To Mr Kevin and Mrs Martin; you did an amazing job molding this awesome person and he will be greatly missed. I will be out of town for work and will not be able to attend the services, so I just wanted to share a few thoughts on how much Kyle meant to me.
