“ Even though my dad was 5-6 years older than Mr. Paul, they were both WWII veterans and friends in the community and the church. I remember when I was a young boy how the men of the church would help each other out working on a barn or a house. Everybody just seemed to come together and work as needed. They all had general nicknames for each other. One of those kinda stuck between Mr. Paul and me. We often passed in the church hall and said, "hello skeeter". Just a fond memory of a good man. I know all of you have many more.
