“ It’s Karen’s smile I will remember. The silly things come to mind as well, like the bucket on her back porch, filled with stray golf balls. She enjoyed the beauty of the golf course out her back window, She turned the errant drives into a joke. “I’ll save them for my son’s next visit!” she quipped. Thank you, too, Peter, for the loving care of your sweetheart.

I am so sorry to hear of Karen's passing. I was a good friend of Elaine Schaller and the three of us spent many hours over the years in TSG office laughing. Now they are together.
