“ Kendall was such a good friend and the best neighbor. We all had some fun block parties in the Lighthouse Place cul-de-sac in South Riding. How about that time we had shots then lit them on fire. I think once Kendall forgot to blow his out before he drank it. He didn't even wince. The next day everyone came back looking for their cell phones and wallets. That was one party to remember. Another good one was the graduation party for Kara, Lindsay and her then boyfriend John. His dad made a drink called party droppers. He spilled it all over Kendall's kitchen floor. That wasn't good. He liked things tight, as he called it. Then there was the margarita machine...maybe that was another party. Too much fun to remember...We will always remember Kendall the way he was, loving, kind, giving and always there to lend a hand. I know he has a beautiful crown in heaven and he's watching over the family. Godspeed Kendall...we will miss you always. Much love, Debbie & Tony Lodato.
