“ Lynna was my best friend in High School. We often had sleepovers at each other's house. We would sit up and read quotes from GONE WITH THE WIND. We had our Daddies drive us to the drive in to watch Gone With The Wind. After several consecutive nights they finally got tired of sitting through a four hour movie. Lynna had a Bongo drum, an imaginative sense of humor and was super smart! ”

“ Ennis, I am so sad that I was not able to see and reminisce with Lynna one more time. I was not in Conway often but if I was and drove past your home, I always looked to see if she was outside on the porch. She was the epitome of a dedicated teacher, and she impacted my life as I began my journey as a teacher. We were all so happy when you two met and married, as her life was exactly as she always dreamed. My prayers and love are with you, your daughters and your grandchildren.

“ I'll never forget our time together growing up and especially cherish the nickname you gave me after a character on a show we would sometimes watch together. I appreciate all the times you looked out for me, all the way from babysitting me as a small child to my times struggling through college. I hope you are at peace ☐

“ We adopted her into the family many years ago and she fit right into my brother's life. She picked up the pieces of his heart that needed to be glued back together and held them close to make him whole with ease. She was never without a joke and was always the Thelma to my Louise! You will never be forgotten and will always be cherished.

“ I have too many memories to share in only one place because she was an integral part of my life growing up. We have a small family and she truly believed it takes a village to raise a child, for this reason I was never without the love and support of both my Aunt (Lynna) and my Uncle (Ennis) while growing up. We made many messes in the kitchen, laughed and even cried together. When my mom was working she was present many times to let me know how much everyone cared about and cherished me. She will truly be missed.
