“Life is short. “It must quickly pass by, and away we fly.” (Psalm 90:10) Humans come and go like green grass, like a passing shadow, like an exhalation. (Psalm 103:15; 144:3, 4) But God did not purpose that we spend a few decades growing up and gaining some wisdom and experience, only to spend the next few decades breaking down and descending into illness and death. God created humans with the desire to live forever. “Time indefinite he has put in their heart,” the Bible tells us. (Ecclesiastes 3:11) Is God cruel, giving us such a desire and then making it impossible to fulfill it? No indeed, for “God is love.” (1 John 4:8) He will use the resurrection to make everlasting life possible for people who have died.

Thanks to the resurrection hope, we can have a secure future. We need not be frantic, driven to reach our full potential right now. We need not make use of this dying world “to the full.” (1 Corinthians 7:29-31; 1 John 2:17) Unlike those with no real hope, the faithful have the wonderful gift of knowing that if we remain faithful to God, we will have all eternity to laud him and enjoy life.

The Bible reveals the true hope that God offers. Through his Son, Jesus Christ, he provides the hope of a resurrection for sinful mankind (John 5:28, 29; Acts 24:15). By all means, then, let us daily praise God, who makes the resurrection hope a certainty!

May the God of all comfort, Jehovah (Psalms 83:18), ease the pain of losing a loved one. Heavenly Father, please help Margaret’s family and friends overcome their grief and find solace in your promises for mankind’s eternal future. Amen.
