“ I remember when we were all together, something would be goin on and we would hear Marge, "Bill they're laughing at me." "Tell them to stop." I would laugh even more, truly believing she was just being funny. I always wondered if she was serious? This past fall I was Blessed to be back with the family and had the opportunity to enjoy Marge. Her illness should teach us that "The here and now" is just that. The past is banished and forgiven; replaced by love and understanding. It was truly a gift and an honor to have had that time with her. Thank you Marge for bringing so much joy and happiness into dad's life.
