“*Martha Duclos was a woman of few words, it was her actions that told her story. She loved her family, was proud of her sons and grand children, and was at home away from home when at work. She knew her work place family in special ways that were meaningful to each, and more over for her meant a new friend. Martha's heart was golden. Despite her illness, she exhibited a soft and tender presence that demonstrated she was at peace with having lived her life. Sometimes I would hold her hand and ask if she knew who I was. She would look at me through weak eyes and say, "I know you, you're Loxie". We would both smile. Martha never complained. She remained a stoic and strong figure of a woman even as she grew more ill. I will remember Martha for her stories of family, always spoken with grace and the feeling of love as a mother and grand mother. To those of us who knew Martha but for a short time, we knew enough to realize we wish she could have stayed with us longer. There is a song titled, "One more day". The question becomes, is one more day enough? When it comes to having been blessed with an acquaintance who becomes a friend with a loving heart, one more day is one more blessing. May she rest in peace, in her new Home with God. May her sons find solace in the knowledge they had but one mother who is now watching over them from a Heavenly view. She is whole, and her radiance is a glow from above. Marty and Stacy; may each day bring you a loving memory of your mother to keep her close to your hearts. May your children remember her love for them as she watches them grow and sends her love through you. With deepest and most sincere respect,

“ Martin & Stacy and family, Our thoughts and prayers are with you at this difficult time. Your Mom was one of the most caring, fun, and generous friends we could have. We will never forget her and the great times we had in Myrtle Beach. Her family meant the world to her especially you two boys and her grandkids. She will be greatly missed. Our deepest sympathy to you all. Stephanie & Jim###imported-begin##Stephanie & Jim TeDesco###imported-end##
