“ She was such a wonderful lady, and the best mother in the whole, wide world. I wish I had done more for her, because she deserved better in her last years.

She could do anything. She hooked rugs, did needlepoint. macrame, made little ornaments using original ideas. She had me do flash cards with her every day when I was learning words, because she wanted me to have a great vocabulary. I do. Yet I can't seem to find the words to express how much this woman meant to me, and how much I miss her.

RIP, Mom. I think about you every day.

Love, love, love you forever and always.
