“ She was the first adult to treat me like an equal. She never belittle me, she never diminished my feelings because I wasn't an adult, and she never chose sides despite a pretty good reason to be biased. She was more than just another friend's parent. She was MY friend too. I'm sure I never expressed to her how much her friendship meant. Even I didn't realize at the time how greatly she helped me. I'm a better person today because I knew her. That may sound corny and cliched but it is very much the truth.

My love and respect for this woman cannot be put into words. Pat was a gentle and kind person who was a friend to me at a time when I had none. I will miss her dearly.
