“ When Richard and I were about ten (10) years old we thought that we would make some money by cutting grass. I was living in West End at the time and Richard was living in Oakland. We each had a grass sling (certainly not a mower with a motor). I walked to Oakland and it was about mid afternoon when I got there. We started walking and asking people if they would like their grass cut. One gentleman said he did and we said that we would do it for five (5) dollars. The grass was very tall (almost to our knees). It was getting late and approaching night when the gentleman came out and helped us finish cutting the grass. That was the first and grass cutting job we took. Our career was over.
