“ My deepest condolences to Pam.

Ricky was always a favorite to see at our family reunions. As a child, I have such a warm memory of him being the one who gave my brother and me one of our all-time favorite Christmas toys.

He was part of that older group of cousins, with Barry, Chris, and Shawn, that we younger kids just looked up to. We'd hang on their words, intently listening in on their conversations. Ricky always had the best stories, which inevitably led to big smiles and tons of laughs. With his big beard and a resonating voice that could capture the entire room, he truly seemed bigger than life.

As I got older, I grew to appreciate his character even more. Beneath that great storyteller was a man who, at his core, was honest, sincere, and incredibly kind. He was someone who always looked for the best in others.

Ricky will be sorely missed and will always be remembered so warmly.
