“ There Truly are no Words that can describe the pain and grief that This family is suffering right now. To lose a loved one when prepared is hard enough But to lose with No reason and No warning leaves an ache that is undescrivable. Richard was the most amazing man I have ever or will ever in my lifetime be able to meet. He was Loved by so so many and he was Revered by all. His gift in this life was his giving nature and his heart knew no boundaries. His love was unconditional and His beliefs were set in stone. I am blessed to have called Him POP for the years that he was with us and I will forever live my life by his teachings and beliefs. Love one another because Life is too precious and too short to do anything else. We Love and Miss you more than words can say POP You are the MAN and God is loving having such am amazing gracious and loving man as one of his angels. We all know down here on earth that You will be able to keep them all straight up there. We will all see you again when its our turn but until that Time its nice to know that Your above watching over all of us and You always Did while you were here. With all our Hearts and Souls. “ Rose, no words I can say will make the pain go away. Some people come into our lives and quietly go; others stay for a while and leave footprints on our hearts and we are never the same. Rich has left his print on all our hearts. Time may stop some of the pain, but we will carry that print forever. Love ya, Bill###imported-begin###William J. Szoke###imported-end##

“ Dear Rosemary, Charlene, and Corinna, Isn't it true? God always takes the good because he needs so many angels. The people who are left behind suffer, and Richie, well, he is comfortable and peaceful, looking down on you every minute wishing he could be with you. I am so sorry that you and Richie are separated for a little while. Now you do the best that you can like you always have for as long as I have known you, as you both wait until you are together again. Did you ever read "The Lovely Bones"? Now is a good time to do so. Trust me. Love, Donna###imported-begin###Donna Nardiello###imported-end##

“ I may have not been born from the genes of such a wonderful, majestic man but I believe in my heart that the relationship we shared was just as special and real as if I was his own flesh and blood. Mark and I will forever be blessed for the memories he gave us, made for us, and shared with us. And even at this time of grieving, I am at peace that he is where he needed to be and that we should have no regrets, only admiration for having had the chance to know him, enjoy him and love him for the time that God had allowed him to share with us. "Our relationship with God doesn't depend on the benefits the relationship offers. We pray, leaving outcomes to God. Loved ones die even when we ask God to heal them, just because we ask doesn't mean that when we don't get what we wish that we should stop asking" The prayer says "Give us today our daily bread" not "Give me today our daily bread" Please remember that in someones passing there is someones birth.
Somewhere in the world someone else was blessed as we were mourning. Love one another, make peace with each other, and live your days as if it was your last. One day it will be..... All my heart, All my soul Corinna and Mark Michael, Evan, Jarrad, Lisa,
