“ To Mike and Marshall and family, It is with sincere sadness that I learned of Mrs. Sara's death and your great grief. What a remarkable person - so gracious and kind and such a pleasure to know. I had the privilege of spending many wonderful times with her in my book store and laughing with her, and conversing about the world. She was a true Southern lady and an example for all who knew her. My father, Willis, spoke so highly of her even before I knew her and then all the words came to life. I know you will miss her as all of us who shared your love for her. God bless you all,##imported-begin##Happy Duncan##imported-end##

“ Knowing your Mother [and grandmother] Sara was an absolute joy and honor for me. I was privileged to know her well and shall miss her endearing smile until we meet again. I think she would like this: Let not my life be framed By this single day of sadness. But more so by the laughter shared While facing all life's madness. Remember all the joyful times Filled with humor, sometimes tears But always us together Through all our memorable years. roger###imported-begin###Roger Van Wie###imported-end##
