“ I remember Shirley well, My daddy owned Smith & Son amaco station located now :next to legends in concert: I would see her at least 2 times a week, She always had a very nice smile.I believe her husband then Jay was a surfside beach policeman, My x father in law was the first police chief of surfside, We let the city charge gas until the first of month. Again the Lord must be needing an angel, RIP Shirley.

My heart hurts and yet soars at the news of Shirley's passing. I too was among the first eleven employees of Anchor Bank. What a joy for every customer to walk in and be greeted by Shirley's smile and kind spirit. Her spirit lives on in her children and in each of us who had the privilege of having her touch our lives!
