"Grandma T was a remarkable woman who fought cancer for over four years with an unwavering strength and courage that inspired everyone around her.

There simply isn't enough space to express the depth of my love and gratitude for all that she has done for me. Her love, guidance, and resilience shaped who I am growing up and she will always hold a special place in my heart. Grandma T leaves behind a lifetime of love and kindness that will never be forgotten. We have all learned the importance of family and life values from her and her memory will be cherished and kept alive through us all. Though I can't fully capture my emotions, please know that my love for her will last forever." Final words from two of her many grandchildren, Dylan Snyder and Ava Barlow.

“ There will never be another one like Terri. She was very special and just when I had a great friend life happens and she’s gone. What I’ve learned is that God brought her in my life for a reason. And I’ve become a better person for it. There’s been many times since her passing that I’ve said “I really need Terri right now,”.

“ I will miss you so much. After we lost Mom it was so nice to have someone to talk to that understood the feelings and emotions after the loss of a parent.
